'Will' Tells of Quarrel With Josephine and Injustice Done to Her.

A strange life in its later years was that of Mrs. Margaret Easton of 90 Futnam avenue, Brooklyn, and her ceath was equally so, for she sat in her rocking chair and died and sat there so for many hours before any-

She died on Saturday, October 29.

"Please have undertaker hold body

ne at once. Mrs. F. D. Johnson."
The undertaker, J. J. Sullivan of 486 had been arranged for Wednesday, No-Cemetery beside her husband, home proving she was Mrs. Easton's daughter. She left the undertaker's shop and he saw her no more.

No will of Mrs. Easton could be found. Yesterday the postman left a large envelope in the Brooklyn Shrrogate's office. It was postmarked "New York, November 23, 10 P. M.," addressed "Clerk for Surrogates Court, New York eity, Brooklyn, N. Y.," and further inscribed: "Pound in 90 Putnam street to-day, Found by an outsider who does not wish to be mixed in the affair on account of friendship. Will of Margaret Easton, June 3, 1921."

The "will" thus mysteriously disclosed is pencilled on a regular lawyer's form for such documents by some one who apparently had little knowledge of spelling, capitalization or punctuation.

"I bequeath," it says, "my two trunks with my close an my gewelery to my two helces Allene and Marle and my house which I now live in on Futnam st to go Allen and the Money on deposits to go to my husbands daughter Josephine who lives some Where in Ohlo Residence unknown. This instrument being drawn by John V. but I hold the Pencil as he moves my fand and this instrument remains in Mr. Eacots Possession until it is Probated. I was at outs with Josephine and my Deceased husband willed her his money in 1911 and I tore the will up and burned up and I am sorry for all I did and said. But now I confess it is all wrong and there must be no fussing over this will for what I have done I have done." The "will" then leaves the whole residuary estate to Josephine Johnson "to satisfy the Last will and testament of James Easton, deceased," and ends: "I do make, constitute and appoint John V. Bacot, my attorney, of New York to be administrator." The date is June 3, 1921, and the pencilled signatures, all in handwritting resembling a child's, "John V. Bacot," "Samuel Clark" and "Margaret Easton." The first man's name is apparently spelled "Bacot" in some places and in others "Bocat." No John V. Bacot or Bocat is listed in Manhattan or Brocklyn directories. Henry A. Vieu, attorney for the administrators, says the will is obviously a "fake."

Pressed for a New York mailing address at the time of her visit to him the woman, who said she was Mrs. F. D. or Josephine Johnson of Bloomville, Ohio, said she was staying temporarily in a lodging house at 31 West Fourteenth street. The proprietor of that lodging house said last night he knew of no Mrs. Johnson and that no one from Ohio had had a room there within his recollection.

JUSTIFIES REMOVAL FROM JAMAICA BAY Commissioner O'Connor Replies to Hulbert's Protest.

The Shipping Board was entirely justified in ordering the removal of 100 of its vessels from anchorage in Jamaica Bay to winter quarters on the Hudson at Cornwall, according to a telegram from Commissioner T. V. O'Connor, received yesterday by Murray Hulbert, Commissioner of Docks, who had protested against the removal.

Mr. O'Connor denied that members of the board had been "duped," saying that the change was necessary for the protection of Government property. He said he did not believe that the cost would be much more than half the figure of $80,000, quoted by Mr. Hulbert.

"The fact of the matter is that many of the boats are on the ground at low tide," the telegram stated, "In addition to this, we have had to change anchors many times during the summer, when there was no ice, and just what would happen if there was a large floc of ice causing pressure is merely conjecture on my part or the part of any one else as to the effect upon the fleet."

hold, where he was literally held as a bond servant.

The Herald presents in this article extracts from the diary of a titled German woman-Louise, Countess Schoenborn, who served through the War as a nurse for the German army. They reveal that back of the other battle line there were people who felt about the War and its horrors as we did on this side. This is the first of two articles, and carries the war up to August, 1917.

Wonderful New Toys for Christmas

Made by the wounded veterans of the War under a business plan that really assists them. An account of the toy exhibition now going on in New York, where the most exceptional toys are being shown-toys that are the best of their kind and in certain particulars are an advance on anything of the sort ever made.

Teaching Detectives to Detect

Uncle Sam through the Department of Justice is teaching its own men how to go about criminal catching. A story of the two real detective schools being run by William J. Burns.

and died in 1914. Two days after the funeral a somberly dressed woman past middle ago called on the undertaker and told him she was Mirs. P. D. Johnson of Bloomyllie, Ohio. She said she was a daughter of Mrs. Easton, that her name had been John the limite of arrangements. This astonished the undertaker, for all the old friends of the Eastons whom he had seen had told him they had only one daughter, Florence, who died thirty years ago, and whose grave is in the family plot in Greenwood Cemetery, Mrs. Johnson had little more to say. The undertaker asked her where she was born. She said the parents had placed her it a convent and that she had lett it and there was a long separation from her parents, but she said she had letters at home proving she was Mrs. Easton's daughter. She left the undertaker's shop and he saw her no more. No will of Mrs. Easton could be found. in To-morrow's
